Les Adkins Award for Career Guidance Excellence

The Career Information System Board established the Les Adkins Award for Career Guidance Excellence to recognize outstanding achievement and successful career guidance practices and to give credit to individuals who use the Career Information System effectively in Oregon. This is a direct service award designed to recognize practitioners and/or programs that directly affect people’s career development through the services they offer.

The CIS Board seeks nominations of people who achieve outstanding results in career guidance/career development services. The award is based upon:

- evidence of the impact of the career guidance/career development services provided by the nominee;
- the extent of integration of CIS with the activities of the nominee;
- the innovative use of CIS;
- outstanding work using career information, and
- overall leadership in career development and guidance.

To nominate a candidate, submit the following information on a separate sheet:

1. Name of nominee
   Title (if an individual)
   Site Address
   Telephone

2. Description of the group served by the nominee. Include data about numbers and types of clients/students served and the outcomes from these services. (one paragraph)

3. Description of the career development practices or program the nominee utilizes. (one to three paragraphs)

4. Description of the nominee’s use of CIS in the career development activities within the school, agency, or program. (one paragraph)

5. Description of what makes the nominee’s practices or program outstanding. (one to three paragraphs)

6. Description of the special contributions the nominee has made to the field of career development. (one to three paragraphs)

7. Name of the person making the nomination, telephone, and e-mail.
The Nancy Hargis Award for Leadership in Career Development

The Career Information System Board established the Board Award for Institutional Leadership to recognize the outstanding services to career guidance practitioners through leadership and to recognize organizations that promote career development and the effective use of the Career Information System in Oregon. In 1997, Nancy Hargis’ special contributions to CIS and the field of career development were recognized by renaming this award.

The CIS Board seeks nominations of individuals, institutions, and organizations that achieve outstanding results by actively supporting career guidance/career development services. The award is based upon:

- outstanding work promoting career development and the use of career information;
- active involvement in the Career Information System network through institutional support and leadership; and
- overall leadership in career development and guidance.

To nominate an individual, program, institution or organization, submit the following:

1. Name of nominee
   Contact person (if an organization) OR Organization (if an individual)
   Address
   Telephone

2. Description of organization, including mission, number of staff, number and types of clients (and other organizations, if appropriate) served. (one paragraph)

3. Description of the nominee’s roles, activities, and commitment to career development and guidance. (one to three paragraphs)

4. Description of how the nominee promotes career development and the use of career information. (one to three paragraphs)

5. Description of what makes this organization’s contributions outstanding. (one to three paragraphs)

6. Name of the person making the nomination, telephone, and e-mail.
